

The Woodrow Wilson HistoryQuest Fellowship

A competitive program for American history teachers, grades 6–12—expenses paid.

Submit nominations NOW—program begins summer 2018

Games-based pedagogy for American history

The Woodrow Wilson HistoryQuest Fellowship, in partnership with the Institute of Play, will help teachers who are selected as Fellows learn how to apply game design principles to foster inquiry-based learning. Fellows will learn to tie games to the curriculum, integrate them into the classroom, create their own games, and assess learning outcomes.

Summer intensive, yearlong development

All WW HistoryQuest Fellows will take part in a free weeklong intensive summer institute, to be held July 22–27, 2018 in Princeton, New Jersey. The program will also offer support and networking, expenses paid, throughout the year:

- two mid-year workshops
- one in-person/three virtual coaching sessions per school
- a ten-month membership to an online professional network moderated by Institute of Play designers
- networks with other history teachers using games and simulations in the classroom

The Institute of Play website (<http://www.instituteofplay.org>) showcases some of the innovative, nationally noted learning resources to be used in the WW HistoryQuest program.

Competitive admission—school endorsement

The Fellowship includes room and board (single-occupancy) for the Fellows during the summer institute and the associated workshops. There is no registration fee for the Fellows, school, or district. However, nominating principals/superintendents must affirm their support for candidates' full participation, including up to two days of release time for workshops and approval for ongoing coaching time. Nominators are encouraged to submit up to three teachers; teams will receive preference.
